

THE TORY SURRENDER.

PROVISIONS OF THE AMENDED LAND BILL.

IT BECOMES A MEASURE OF RELIEF TO IRISH TENANTS.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS HAS PASSED THE BILL.

LONDON, July 22.—Last night's debate in the House of Commons goes to show that the belief that the kaleidoscopic measure, the Irish Land bill, which changes its aspect from week to week and almost from day to day, may in its final shape prove of some benefit to the Irish tenants. The Government were confessedly at night making to the House the confession of surrender of their principles which they had previously made in the privacy of the Carlton Club. They were obliged to swallow the leek all at once instead of by mouthfuls, and to state openly the price at which they bought the votes of their Liberal-Unionist allies. Their concessions are practically these: They propose to grant an abatement for three years on the judicial rents which they had hitherto declared it would be sacrilege to touch, and they have closed against the landlord the fin a foie, or as it has been called, "the backdoor" method of eviction which the bill as it originally stood left open to them. The most remarkable feature in the debate was the suggestion of Mr. Parnell that the tenants evicted for a number of years should be reinstated, the landlords being compensated out of the Irish church fund for any loss which they might have incurred. The vast importance of this provision will be seen at a glance. The Government have not actually accepted it, but the manner in which it was met last night gives reason to hope that it may be embodied in the bill.

All these concessions have greatly embittered the Irish landlord members, but in the present condition of affairs on this matter so far as the House of Commons is concerned they are almost quantum negligeable.

Some newspapers here, including one or two who support the Government, are urging the inclusion in the Ministry of Lord Hartington and avoiding in future such electoral disasters as Spalding and Coventry. But even if Lord Hartington were willing to take office, the result of his doing so would probably be the very opposite of that which these journals desire.

If the Whigs, Marquis, entered the Cabinet, it is very likely that he would bring with him Sir Henry James and perhaps some other of his followers. The rank and file of the Tory party feel very keenly that already too high a price has been paid for the support of the Liberal-Unionists and the inclusion of these gentlemen in the Ministry would tend to break up the cohesion of the party, and before many weeks the change would supply another illustration of the old saying, "Out of the frying pan into the fire." Besides, the Government could not at this juncture afford to make such a demonstration of incapacity and helplessness as would be involved in the dismissal of their Prime Minister to make way for Lord Hartington.

The debate yesterday on the conduct of Dr. Tanner showed a petty, mean and vindictive Government. Dr. Tanner came out of it with flying colors. His explanation was manly and dignified, and while it rendered full satisfaction to the House for the offence committed, it carried the war into the enemy's country by pointing out that the offence was committed under strong, and as he believed, intentional, motives. Mr. Long, who conducted the doctor's defence, appeared for corroboration of his statement to the effect, but such a race on the transaction as made it evident that Dr. Tanner was deliberately baited for the amusement of some of the Tory gentlemen; and yet the Government pressed for heavy punishment against Dr. Tanner, a retelling of the incident, and an intervention in support of the Government, and was foolish enough to commit himself to the declaration that Dr. Tanner's statement was not sufficient; that it was partly a denial and partly a justification, and that the Aon member ought to be punished. He made the still worse blunder of saying that the division should be taken on the motion, "Resolved, That the House do not receive the statement of Dr. Tanner." The speaker expressed his opinion that the explanation had been ample, and that no further step should be taken in the matter. This was a very severe snub for Lord Hartington. The incident terminated, as many others have terminated this session, in casting shame on the party which inaugurated them with the object of making a little political capital.

STANLEY'S AFRICAN EXPEDITION.

REASONS FOR BELIEVING THE EXPLORER TO BE SAFE—HIS TRIP UP THE CONGO.

BRUSSELS, July 22.—Governor Janssens, of the Congo Free State, on July 20 telegraphed General Strauch, Administrator-General of the Interior Department of the State's Central Government here, as follows: "Send me 600 pieces of stuff. Stanley started on July 2 to Wadiadi. This dispatch was sent from St. Thomas, and General Strauch telegraphed to the Administrator-General, saying that General Janssens, in ordering the pieces, relied on the expedition making regular progress."

General Janssens, in ordering the pieces, relied on the expedition making regular progress. Stanley was dispatched by an English officer whom Stanley left in charge of the camp there and this news was taken by a steamer to Leopoldville, and the men left at Leopoldville to return to Leopoldville, where she would repair. She would then re-cross the river to the Aruwimi with an escort of soldiers and the men left at Leopoldville under Captain Bartlett."

LONDON, July 22.—A dispatch from St. Paul de Louisa says that Stanley expedition arrived on May 25 at the confluence of the Aruwimi and the Congo, between Bangala station and Stanley Falls. The expedition was composed of 100 men, 100 mules, 100 pack animals, and 100 pack animals. Stanley made a camp on the banks bordering the right bank of the Aruwimi, on the morning of June 1. The prospects of a successful expedition, on June 1 Stanley started for Wadiadi with a force of 100 men, 100 mules, 100 pack animals, and 100 pack animals. The remainder of the men under an officer in camp on the Aruwimi. At Boma it was thought that it would take Stanley two months to reach Wadiadi. Stanley's camp, it was expected that the steamer Stanley, whose engines were greatly strained by the difficult work of the expedition, would be able to start on June 3 on her return to Leopoldville, where she would repair. She would then re-cross the river to the Aruwimi with an escort of soldiers and the men left at Leopoldville under Captain Bartlett."

IT WAS NEWS TO MR. SMITH.

LONDON, July 22.—W. H. Smith, the Government leader, was asked in the House of Commons this afternoon by Mr. Ellis if there was any truth in the widespread report that the Queen had sent for Lord Hartington to induce him to join the Ministry. Mr. Smith replied that he had only now heard the statement for the first time, and could only say that it caused him great surprise. [Laughter.]

GERMAN OFFICERS MISSING.

BERLIN, July 22.—A party of German officers from the garrison of Metz visited Nancy in mufti during the national fête last week and have not been heard from since. It is presumed that they were arrested while watching the review of the troops or for having become embroiled in a quarrel. Their disappearance has caused some excitement in the Metz garrison.

COMING AFTER THE CUP.

PREPARING THE THISTLE FOR HER TRIP.

CAPTAIN BARR SHAKES HIS HEAD WHEN HE THINKS OF THE VOLUNTEER.

LONDON, July 22.—In preparing the Thistle for her transatlantic voyage no structural alterations have been made. She will be rigged with a short bowsprit and a single mast, and will sail under a mainmast, a small foremast, a jib and a staysail. Her racing rig and a spare mast will be brought over by one of the Anchor Line vessels. Captain Kerr, an old Atlantic sailor, will navigate the vessel.

Captain Barr, the commander of the Thistle, refuses to express an opinion as to the Thistle's chances of winning the America's Cup. He asserts that she can run away from the Mayflower in light winds, but she will be beaten in a steady breeze. He is, however, judging from the reports received, a much greater departure from the usual American lines has been taken in the construction of the Thistle as compared with the Genesta and Galatesa. Doubtless, he says, the Thistle is a fast boat, but he does not think it will be able to beat the Mayflower.

Mr. Macdonald, the mate of the Thistle, declares that the Thistle is able to beat the Mayflower by twenty minutes over the New York course the Thistle will win the America's Cup.

THE VOLUNTEER SAILING TO NAHANT.

HER SAILS ALL WORKING WELL—A BETTER BOAT THAN THE MAYFLOWER IN ROUGH SEAS.

BOSTON, July 22 (Special).—A story was published by an evening paper to-day that the sloop yacht Volunteer had met with an accident to-day, that her mainmast had been blown away with a crash, and that the tattered sheet was flying in the air. The Volunteer, however, is not a racing sloop, but a schooner, and the facts are that this afternoon after the rainstorm the Volunteer started out for a short run to Nahant, General Paine's summer home. The sea was heavy and a fifteen-knot breeze was blowing. Her sails at first worked badly but came out all right in a short time, and she stood up magnificently in the heavy sea. The Volunteer is a schooner, and the facts are that this afternoon after the rainstorm the Volunteer started out for a short run to Nahant, General Paine's summer home. The sea was heavy and a fifteen-knot breeze was blowing. Her sails at first worked badly but came out all right in a short time, and she stood up magnificently in the heavy sea.

Comments on the Volunteer's trip.

NEW-YORK YACHTSMEN PRAISED WITH THE RESULT—HOPES OF A BRILLIANT SUCCESS.

The performance of the Volunteer on her trial trip from Boston to Nahant on Thursday has caused much gratification to yachtsmen here, who realize that it will take a first-class boat to defend the America's Cup against the Scotch flyer, the Thistle. According to the reports from Boston she overhauled the Bedouin handsomely, but the Bedouin's size makes her no match for the Thistle. The Thistle, however, is not so much to be feared as she is represented. The Thistle is a schooner, and the facts are that this afternoon after the rainstorm the Volunteer started out for a short run to Nahant, General Paine's summer home. The sea was heavy and a fifteen-knot breeze was blowing. Her sails at first worked badly but came out all right in a short time, and she stood up magnificently in the heavy sea.
